PRESS RELEASE

SIMON IMBERT APPOINTED TO THE BOARD OF THE INKERMAN GROUP

MAY 2010, THE INKERMAN GROUP has announced that Simon Imbert has joined its Board of Directors as an Executive Director. This announcement signals the completion of the company's recent activity to strengthen its Board as it embarks on a period of significant growth and consolidation.

Simon has joined the Board at this time to further contribute to The Inkerman Group's ambitious business plans, having worked previously with the company at a senior level and also within the Group's subsidiary companies, Capital Eye and PSS; he has already brought a great deal of industry, commercial and management experience to its activities to date.

Simon's commercial experience to date is worldwide and wide-ranging across the security industry but with specific expertise in police development projects, risk and security advice. Previously CEO of both Capital Eye and Policing Support Services (PSS), companies that he started in the mid 1990s with his father, Lord Imbert, a former Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police Service and HM Lord Lieutenant for Greater London, he possesses a substantial and impressive network within the security sector.

Simon is a former Chairman of The Association of Police and Public Security Suppliers (now part of the industry trade body ADS) and Deputy Chair of their Security Export Focus Group, and he sits on the UK Department for Trade and Investment's Global Sports Projects Sector Advisory Group. He was the 8th Master of the Worshipful Company of Security Professionals (the City's 108th, and most recent, Livery Company), and is a Principal Founder Member and Liveryman; he is a Freeman of the City of London

Commenting on his appointment, Simon explains "I am extremely pleased to be invited to join the Board at this time – it is both an exciting and challenging opportunity, and one which I am looking forward to. The Inkerman Group has great potential – its comprehensive range of services in this sector, together with its ability to offer highly professional, responsive, flexible and entirely tailored offerings to its clients is unique, and there are many companies out there who need this kind of service provision. This is a particularly important growth time for the business,” he continues, as the Company successfully secures new contracts, such as that for the security and intelligence services for major tennis tournaments, where its expertise in event security is now becoming a mainstream part of the business.”

Gerald Moor, CEO adds “I am delighted that Simon has agreed to join The Inkerman Group as Director – he joins the Board at a critical point in the company’s development and there is no doubt that he will play a significant part in our growth plans in the future. He brings a great deal of knowledge and experience, particularly in the management of security issues for many well-known clients such as World Bank, EU, UK Dept. for International Development, commercial and private clients; his addition to the Board ensures that we have a strong team to take the business forward.”
