

INKERMAN GROUP ANNOUNCES EXPANSION INTO EUROPE

THE INKERMAN GROUP recently announced an expansion of their operations into mainland Europe.

The Company already has a significant client base in Germany and therefore many contacts in the marketplace and it is this which has driven the move to establish an office there. The intention is that this will further strengthen relationships with their existing Blue-Chip clients, as well as being the first stage of significantly growing its international base within Europe. The Inkerman Group has secured offices in the business area of Cologne, Germany from which it will offer the full range of its services but in particular, Kidnap and Ransom, extortion, background screening for new staff, due diligence, electronic sweeps and security surveys.

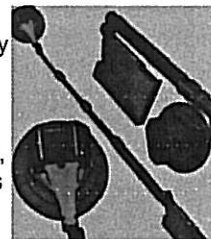

Gerald Moor, CEO, is enthusiastic about this latest move in the company's ever increasingly ambitious growth plans. "2008 will be a very exciting year for The Inkerman Group," he explains, "not only have we extended our proposition in terms of the services we are able to provide our clients, but now we are also increasing our geographical reach. Our clients in Germany are significant and it is largely due to their encouragement that we have taken this step to open new offices there. Having said that, the company's intention is to continue with this first-stage expansion into mainland Europe as an integral part of our growth plans," he added.

ARE YOU BEING BUGGED?

Christian Earl of The Inkerman Group, an international specialist risk management and investigation company, has recently come back from Tennessee, USA, after completing an intensive advanced course in Technical Surveillance Counter Measures (TSCM) commonly known as "bug detection". TSCM is a professional electronic and physical search to detect whether any eavesdropping equipment has been strategically placed, whether in the boardroom, bedroom, boat or vehicle.

Christian regularly carries out sweeps for companies and private individuals and said, "Recently, I visited a local organisation who suspected that confidential information was being leaked to a competitor. The initial sweep detected a strong signal in one of their meeting rooms and we discovered a strategically placed pinhole bug". Without the management taking the basic precautions of protecting their business, more confidential information would have been leaked.

The Inkerman Group can advise companies and individuals how they can best combat any form of eavesdropping. Did you know that if you use Bluetooth, this can be intercepted from 1.8 kilometres! Christian said, "Information leaks via telephones, faxes, wireless LANs, boardroom radio microphones and email, all need security procedures to minimise their exposure to information loss.

Many executives seriously undervalue these risks and are blind to the value of information within their organisation".

CEO Gerald Moor said, "Every year millions of pounds are stolen in corporate theft and other people's business ideas. More organisations are recognising that they need to combat the eavesdropping problems of today".

Is someone listening to you? We look forward to hearing from you!
